How did we women go from from being barefoot cave women to women who crave stylish high end shoes. When did the shoemaker go from making shoes and repairing soles to becoming known as "fairy tale cobblers?" From wearing grass shoes to wearing stilettos, we women have evolved over the centuries, and have the bunions to prove it. We survived the pointed shoe shoes of the '50s to Cuban heels of the '60s and the boots of the '70s!

Comfort never seemed to be a criteria, but now in the last several years, that seems to be a priority. We can wear flats for comfort and style, and watch brides and attendees change into tennis shoes after the ceremony! Take this journey with us and also learn about Salvatore Ferragamo, who was considered the master shoemaker of the 20th century. From extremely humble beginnings on a small farm in a tiny village in Italy, Ferragamo became the shoemaker to the stars and an international "fairy tale cobbler!" His story will fascinate you and inspire you as well.
